36. A method of assembling an illumination package for an optical reader including the steps of:
- providing a support having a forward receiving surface;
  - positioning a forwardly projecting light source on said support;
  - adjustably positioning a lens on said forward receiving surface such that said light source passes therethrough and is focused at a point in space;
  - adjusting the position of said lens on said forward receiving surface so that said light source is focused on a desired point in space and
  - then securing said lens to said forward receiving surface.
